INDEX

TO THE SIXTY-THIRD VOLUME.

A.

Across the Water. Our Watering-Place, 503
Adventure, An, among Pirates in the Pacific. By Barrington Beaver, 296
Advertisements, Matrimonial, 491
Ainsworth, William Harrison. Myddleton Pomfret. A Novel, by. Book V., 1, 189.—Book VI., 320
Almanacks, The German, for 1868, 33
America, Fenianism in, 129
Angel and the Sunshine, The, 605
Another Spiteful Letter, On. By J. E. Carpenter, 292
Atlantic and Pacific Railroad, The, 284

B.

Banker's Strong-Box, The. Part I., 261.—II., 399
Beaver Barrington, An Adventure among Pirates in the Pacific, 296
Bushby, Mrs. St. George and the Dragon. From the Danish, by, 488

C.

Camp, Negus Theodore and his, 176
Carol, A May-Day. By William Jones, 470
Carpenter, J. E. On Another Spiteful Letter, by, 292
Crime, A Tale of, 50
Curé, The Village, 134

D.

Dean Stanley's Historical Memoirs of Westminster Abbey, 472
"Devil's Own," The Origin of. By William Jones, 82
Dress, Sense and Fashion in, 292
Dumas, Alexandre, and his Scotch Pointer, 273

E.

Education. A Satire, 366

F.

Fashion and Sense in Dress, 292
Fenianism in America, 129
Farleigh Castle, A Legend of, 619
Fate, The, of Count Hector de Trémorel. Part I., 540.—II., 622

G.

German Almanacks, The, for 1868, 33
Gipsies, Simson's History of the, 411
Gormanston; or, the Wanderer. A Cuddy Yarn. Chap. I., Introductory.—II. The Outward Bound.—III. A Catastrophe. — IV. The Swimmer.—V. A Lion in the Way. —VI. The Yarn continued and concluded, 378

H.

Hildebrand, Sir, and the Unknown Knight. By William Jones, 249

Historical Memoirs of Westminster Abbey, Dean Stanley's, 472
Hoche, Lazare: The Invader of Ireland, 595
Hostelry of the Thirteen Hung Men, The, 606

I.

Indian Sporting Literature, 527
In Dixie. By a Confederate Staff Officer, 638
Irish Wheat and Tares, 162

J.

Jack Osborne's Wooing. A Tale of the Sea-Coast, 315
Jacox, Francis. Prestwood Papers, by. No. III., 70.—IV., 144.—V., 239.—VI., 352.—VII., 460.—VIII., 572
Jones, William. The Origin of the "Devil's Own," by, 82. The Knight of Ridley's Son, by, 158. Sir Hildebrand and the Unknown Knight, by, 249. A May-Day Carol, by, 470. A Legend of Saint Brita, 581

K.

Knight, The, of Ridley's Son. By William Jones, 158
Knight, The Unknown, and Sir Hildebrand. By William Jones, 249

L.

Legend of Farleigh Castle, A, 619
Lewis, E. B. The Wife's Revenge. A Roman Story, by. Part I., 251.—II., 369
Literature, Indian Sporting, 527
Loved and Lost. Chap. I., An Oft-Told Tale—Love at First Sight.—II. A Life Saved, and a Heart Won. III. "Engaged or Free? That's the Question."—IV. Hopeless Love. An Unexpected Meeting.—V. A Fatal Shot.—VI. Hope Revives—Hope Dies, 508

M.

Marguerite Printanière, 416
Matrimonial Advertisements, 491
May-Day Carol. By William Jones, 470
Morning, 319
Münster, Mrs. Alfred M. Whose Wife was She? 584
Myddleton Pomfret. A Novel. By William Harrison Ainsworth. Book the Fifth.—Belfield. Chap. IV. The Arrival at Belfield.—V. Mrs. Bootle's Letter to her Mamma.—VI. In the Billiard-room.—VII. Mrs. Bootle's Boudoir.—VIII. The Dinner.—IX. Maternal Anxieties. X. In the Conservatory.—XI. The Plan is Arranged, 1. Chap. XII. The Ball.—XIII. Finesse de Léontine.—XIV. Les Rusés d'Emile.—XV. A Broken Heart.—XVI. Sequel.—XVII. Sir Norman makes a Discovery.—XVIII. Mrs. Bootle's Decision is Made.—XIX. Mrs. Bootle leaves Belfield, 189. Book the Sixth.—Saved. Chap. I. Last Scene but One of the Drama.—II. Last Scene, 320

N.

Negus, Theodore, and his Camp, 176

O.

On another Spiteful Letter. By J. E. Carpenter, 272

P.

Pacific and the Atlantic Railroad, 284
Pacific, an Adventure among the Pirates in, 296
Prestwood Papers. By Francis Jacox. III. About Dunces at School, who become Prizemen in After-life: a Chapter of Instances, 70.—IV. About Leave-taking, and Leaving it Untaken: a Custom more Honoured in the Breach than the Observance, 144.—V. Mr. Pleydell at High Jinks: Typically Considered, 239.—VI. About Reading the Heart in the Face: a Cue from Shakspeare, 352.—VII. About Monsieur Jourdain; as regards (1) His Mercantile Pedigree; (2) His Unconscious Facility in Prose; and (3) His Fencing Bout with Nicole, 460.—VIII. Much to be said on Both Sides: a Conclusion wherein nothing is Concluded, 572

S.

Saint Brita, A Legend of. By William Jones, 581

St. George and the Dragon. From the Danish. By Mrs. Bushby, 488
Satire, a, Education, 366
Saville, Monk. Worth the Winning, By. Chaps. I. and II., 86.—III. and IV., 111.—V. VI. and VII., 221.—VIII. IX. and X., 331.—XI. XII. and XIII., 441.—XIV. XV. and XVI., 551
Scotch Pointer, Alexandre Dumas and his, 273
Simson's History of the Gipsies, 411
Sir Hildebrand and the Unknown Knight. By William Jones, 249
Strong-Box, the Banker's, Part I., 261.—II., 399.

T.

Tale of Crime, a, 50
Theodore, Negus, his Camp, 176
Thirteen Hung Men, The Hostelry of the, 606
Time Was, Is, and Shall be, 415
Trémorel, Count Hector, de, the Fate of. Part I., 540.—II., 622

U.

Unhappy Valley, an, 62

V.

Village Curé, the, 134

W.

Westminster Abbey, Dean Stanley's Historical Memorials of, 472
Whose Wife was She? By Mrs. Alfred M. Münster, 584
Wife's Revenge, The. A Roman Story. By F. B. Lewis. Part I. Chap. I. The Brigands.—II. Prince Giustiniani's Narration. — III. Beatrice.—IV. The Oath of Vengeance, 251.—Part II. Chap. I. The Abbess of St. Ursula.—II. Agnes Beauchamp's Story.—III. The Casket, 369
Worth the Winning. By Monk Saville. Chap. I. Treeby Cottage by Twilight.—II. A Peep at the Family Skeleton, 86.—III. A Short Account of the Family Skeleton.—IV. The Family Skeleton absorbs more of the Author's Time and Ink than he Bargained for, 111.—V. In which the History of the Family Skeleton is at length wound up.—VI. Across the Walnuts and the Wine.—VII. Austin Reefer and Maud Treeby; with some Talk on Domestic Affairs, 221.—VIII. A Marshward Nightingale and Mr. Moore's Melodies.—IX. Not Germane seemingly to the Rest of the Story, but Records a Catastrophe. X. Ashleigh Chase. A Landscape and Figures, 331.—XI. A Speculating Peer.—XII. Lord Boulder is loath to take Advice.—XIII. The Head of the House of Tarnicliffe and his Wife, 441.—XIV. Breakfast at Christmas Time.—XV. Briefly Narrates what Lord Boulder said on the Terrace.—XVI. Placens Uxor, 551

Y.

Yarn, A Cuddy. Gormanston; or, the Wanderer. Chaps. I. to VI., 378

END OF THE SIXTY-THIRD VOLUME.

LONDON:
PRINTED BY C. WHITING, BEAUFORT HOUSE, STRAND.